HOTEL MAGNATES GO WITH REGRET

Virginia-Carolina Association Adjourns After Best Convention It Ever Held.

After hearing "little talks" by advertising men yesterday morning, members of the Virginia-Carolina Hotel Men's Association started for home in the afternoon, though a number of them, charmed with the reception here, decided to remain another day. Undoubtedly this has been the most successful convention of either association, but the North Carolina representatives say that the one to be held in Asheville next spring will fall but little short of it. Several members of both associations will accept the invitation of President Tierney to attend the annual meeting of the Hotel Men's Mutual Benefit Association, which will be held at Chattanooga in May.

Appreciating the many courtesies extended by the management of the Jefferson hotel, the exhibitors yesterday morning, through Mr. Ernest H. Bennett, presented Mrs. P. M. Fry with a large bouquet of roses and a reception letter. Mr. Nuddo repeated his lecture, "Kitchen Pointers," with extra frills, for the benefit of the women, and the convention was at an end.

Until the snow began to fall in earnest, towards the shank of the afternoon, members of the convention were driven in automobiles to the many points of interest throughout the city. By the courtesy of Mr. William Rueger, the outgoing president, together with Mr. Tierney, were taken

News of the Southside

Manchester Bureau, Times-Dispatch, No. 1102 Hull Street.

Whether the City Council, at its joint session to-morrow night, will take up the much discussed consolidation question is not at present known. The Richmond City Council has invited the Manchester Council to appoint a committee to look into the matter and to report on the advisability of annexing with the city across the James river. Up to this time Manchester has failed to appoint a committee.

Whether the move is for the good of the city remains to be seen, but according to many prominent citizens, it is absolutely up to the city to make some move towards either turning down or accepting the Richmond offer. The question of consolidation has been rocking along for such a length of time, said a man who is opposed to the move yesterday, "that I have become tired of it. I would almost vote to have the city become a part of Richmond rather than have this thing go on longer the way it has for the past few months." While not in favor of becoming a part of Richmond, this citizen thinks that those who are opposed to the move are not using all the power to keep the question from coming to an issue, and he is not at all pleased at the methods used. The meeting to-night will be watched with much interest by the citizens.

Chapman Meeting Drags Well.

Notwithstanding the fact that the weather was inclement and that the falling snow made it hard for the pedestrian, the second night of the Chapman-Alexander meetings in this city was well attended by a congregation composed of the representative citizens of Manchester. The meeting was again held in the Central Methodist Church, and was conducted by the Rev. Frank Chapman, who took as his text "Christ Imperative," from the 27th verse of the 26th chapter of John. Mr. C. F. Fugitt, who was assigned to the Manchester meeting, sang, "Mr. Fugitt is well known in this city and Richmond for his efforts in behalf of the Municipal League, which took place on Church Hill several years ago.

Leslie Got the Goose.

Leslie Garber, locked in one cell, and a "honking" goose, in the next, made a combination that is hard to beat in the Manchester Police Station last night. Where Leslie got the goose or the liquor that made him anything but a distinction to the community is hard to tell.

The most intelligent expression that could be got out of him was that he stole the goose. This, however, was self-evident from the fact that a neighbor who had lost a goose answering to the description of the one confined in the cell, had sworn out a warrant for the arrest of Leslie. Besides acknowledging that he stole the goose, Leslie was, after many questions, made to own up to the fact that he was drunk.

Mrs. Evans Critically Ill.

Mrs. Sallie Evans, one of the oldest and best known residents of this city, is critically ill, and little hope is entertained for her recovery. Mrs. Evans resides at No. 1805 Decatur Street, where she has been living for more than fifty-two years. She is considered the oldest resident of the city. When she bought the house she now lives in it was surrounded by cornfields. Now it is in the most popular residential section of the city.

Revival Successful.

The Rev. L. Peyton Little, who has been conducting a series of successful revivals at the Weatherford Memorial Baptist Church, in Swansboro, will preach both services at that church Sunday. Mr. Little will keep up his revival work until the end of next week. Many conversions have already been made as the result of Mr. Little's work, and he is doing much good in the community.

Persons and Briefs.

Mr. Charles L. Pettit, who has been ill at his home in this city, is reported to be somewhat better.

The regular weekly meeting of Hegel's Convalescent Hospital was held last night in the hall, at Eighth and Hull Streets. After the business meeting, the lodge adjourned to the Lafayette House for supper.

Captain Elder and party, who have been on an extensive hunting and fishing trip down the James River, have returned.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Renner and wife have been presented with a handsome set of silver spoons by the senior choir of Asbury Church, of this city. The junior choir presented Mr. Renner with a handsome scarf pin.

Tom Fowler, charged with fighting with his brother-in-law, was fined $5 and costs in the Mayor's Court. He came near colliding with a runaway horse attached to a Richmond delivery wagon caused a great deal of excitement in Swansboro last night. He came near colliding with a Hull Street car, and the boy who was seated in the wagon at the time it collided jumped after he had run a few blocks.

David Cole, Epix and Carrie Lee, all colored, were before Mayor Mice yesterday on the charge of fighting in the street, and were fined the usual amount for such rows—$2.50 and costs.

Mr. Charles Burkett has returned from Petersburg, where he attended the funeral of his friend, Mr. W. H. Winfree, yesterday.

Mr. E. H. Dego, of the Itoanoke Bridge Company, is registered at the Lafayette House. Mr. Dego has just completed the supervision of some repair work on some of the Chesterfield bridges, and says that so far all bridges go, the county is now in a splendid condition.

MAY SHATTER OLD FACTIONAL LINES

Democrats Appear to Be Badly Divided as to the Governorship.

EARLY ACTIVITIES EXPECTED

Mr. Stuart to Return Next Week, While Others Are Already Here.

With the political leaders, big and little, throughout the State resting temporarily on their oars, and waiting for the people to turn their attention from holiday festivities to the sterner things of real active business life, a year which will be marked by sharp contests all along the lines has already opened. Candidates for nearly every office of importance have quickly announced their intentions to seek preferment at the hands of the voters, and others are "feeling their way," and undertaking to find out "how the land lies."

"The governorship is, of course, the overshadowing issue before the Democrats, and the three candidates already in the field have been pretty well over the State, though only to lay the foundation for what is to follow. Whether there shall finally be only three or more contestants for the honor will have but little effect upon the warmth of the struggle, for in either view it promises to be one of the most exciting witnessed in Virginia in many years.

Hon. Henry C. Stuart is now en route from Paris to New York, having recently gone abroad to accompany Mrs. Stuart and their daughter home, and shortly after his arrival his friends say he will begin an active campaign for votes throughout the State.

The Real Candidate.

Whenever one candidate begins to work actively the others will follow, and no surmise need be anticipated by the voters until the battle ends in the primary next summer.

Factional lines are already being shattered to a large extent, and each aspirant seems to be pulling for all the votes he may be able to land from whatever source.

Judge Mann is manifestly stronger than either of his competitors with what is commonly called the machine forces, but the latter will be badly divided when the final round-up comes, according to the popular view. Tucker and Stuart are both apparently making inroads upon the old organization in certain sections, while in others it is said that the Nottingham candidate is pulling some strength from the ranks of those who heretofore usually lined up against the machine. However these things may be, a desperate struggle is in sight, and many issues which do not now show themselves on the surface are likely to be drawn in. No definite announcements have been made so far concerning the opening of headquarters, though it is the general opinion that they will all be in full blast within the next thirty days.

Colonel Catlett Active.

Colonel Robert Catlett of Lexington, who recently announced himself a candidate for Attorney-General, to succeed Major William A. Anderson, who will not stand for re-election, is doing a great deal of quiet work among the voters of the State, and he says that the outlook for his success is very promising at this time. The only other candidate for this position is former Circuit Judge Samuel W. Williams, of Wythe, and he, too, is said to be active. The contest is now in its preliminary, letter-writing stage, but it is passing rapidly to one of open, hard fighting on the part of the candidates for all the offices to be filled at the primary.

In the race for Lieutenant-Governor the incumbent, Hon. J. Taylor Ellinger, of this city, will be opposed by Colonel James R. Catton, a prominent lawyer and member of the House of Delegates from Alexandria city and county. They are both well known in political circles and have a great many loyal supporters. Candidates for the House from this city are now in making definite announcements, but it

Buildings Are Burned.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

LAWRENCEVILLE, VA., January 7.—Tonight a fire was discovered in the wheelwright and blacksmith shops belonging to the St. Paul Normal and Industrial School, which were soon burned to the ground. But for the energy of Rev. Mr. Russell, the principal, assisted by his pupils and the hallstern which was prevailing at the time, the larger part of the business portion of the town would have been swept by the flames, as there was a fierce wind blowing from the northwest. The loss is at least $2,000 on buildings, tools and material, with only $1,000 insurance.
